

Information for ACGT Authors and Attendees

Dear ACGT Authors and Attendees,

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to all authors and attendees who have submitted papers and showed interest and cooperation for successful ACGT preparation. There is less than a month left until the conference. We have summarized some of the information for the presenters and attendees as follows. Please read it carefully and feel free to contact the LOC at contact@acgt2022.org for any questions or assistance.

Submission File List by Presentation Type

This ACGT2022 offers a wide variety of presentations methods (i.e. onsite/online, oral/poster, extended abstract/full paper) for the convenience of presenters and attendees. Therefore, please understand that the materials or files to be submitted before the conference start differ depending on the type of presentation. Refer to the "Participant Guidelines" attached separately for details on the submission files and deadline, which is also uploaded in the Notice on the conference website (www.acgt2022.org). We would like to ask for your cooperation so that all the required files can be submitted within the deadline.

Sharable version of presentation material (ppt or pdf)

The submission of sharable presentation material is being first attempted in this ACGT2022 to provide convenience to authors by simplifying the full paper, which had to be submitted by all presenters at the past ACGTs, into extended abstract. As a result, there have been several inquiries about this. The sharable presentation material literally means the PPT or PDF files edited so that the authors can distribute the presentation slides to be used at the conference. Participants registered in the conference can download this file as well as extended abstract through the conference website. It is recommended that this sharable presentation material consists of at least five pages and includes the key topics and main findings of the presentation. Sample material is uploaded on the conference website, but this is only for reference, and authors can prepare them in a free style and content. The deadline and method of submission are also provided on the conference website.

Pre-selection of onsite/online presentation options

To facilitate the preparation and progress of ACGT2022 sessions, presenters should inform in advance whether their papers will be presented in-person in Gangneung or remotely. On the conference website, we have created a tab that allows authors to simply select presentation options in “Log-in → Submission → Submission Management”. The deadline for selection is August 8.

Full paper review process

The deadline for the full paper submission has been extended to August 15. Once again, a full paper submission is entirely optional. Interested authors should submit through “Submission” on the website. Guidelines for review and publication process of the submitted full papers will be noticed by the Technical Program Committee shortly after the conference ends.

Pre-registration Guide

The LOC is encouraging pre-registration to authors and participants for smooth conference preparation. Please refer to the website for pre-registration methods and payment. However, onsite registration is also available at the registration desk of the conference venue.

Reservations of accommodation and transportation

The conference period is still a peak season in Gangneung area, and many domestic and foreign people are expected to plan a trip to Gangneung. Therefore, it is recommended that you prepare hotel and transportation reservations in advance. Please refer to the conference website for hotel and transportation information.
